First integrated red light and speed camera operational

The integrated red light and speed camera at the Stuart Highway and Deviney Road intersection will be operational on Tuesday 29 January 2008.

This camera is the first of nine integrated red light and speed cameras to be introduced in the Northern Territory.

The camera detects both speeding and red light running and it will commence issuing infringement notices as of Tuesday.

Permanent and temporary signs have been put in place at the intersection so motorists are aware that the camera is now operational.
